How much did Zimbabwe earn from lithium exports in 2023?

Zimbabwe earned $209 million from lithium exports in the first nine months of 2023*. This is nearly treble last year's earnings, Mines Minister Zhemu Soda said on Wednesday, as Chinese-driven mining and processing projects take off.

Why is Zimbabwe a leading lithium producer?

Boasting Africa's largest lithium reserves and ranking sixth globally, Zimbabwe strategically places itself among leading lithium-producing countries like Chile, Australia, China, Argentina, and Brazil, underscoring its pivotal role in meeting the escalating demands of a progressively electrified and sustainable global economy.

Does Zimbabwe have a lithium mine?

Zimbabwe has been mining lithium for 60 years and the government estimates that its Chinese-owned Bikita mine, which is located 300 km south of the capital Harare, has about 11 million metric tons of lithium resources.

Why did Zimbabwe ban lithium exports last year?

Last year, Zimbabwe's government banned raw lithium exports to get more value from the mineral. The reason for the ban was to expand output, as other major producers are expected to start operations in Zimbabwe in 2024. Lithium prices in China, the top consumer of the battery metal, have been on a downtrend for much of this year.

How important is a lithium-ion battery to EV production in Zimbabwe?

Notably, the lithium-ion battery (LiB), a crucial component of EVs, can constitute between a third to half of the EV's total cost. With the surging production of EVs and essential electronics crucial for achieving a zero-carbon emission energy transition, Zimbabwe is rapidly ascending global ranks.

Will lithium help revive Zimbabwe's economy?

Lithium, which is key for renewable energy storage and is Africa's top lithium producer, is expected to become Zimbabwe's third biggest mineral export after gold and platinum group metals, which registered $2.46 billion and $2.27 billion in export receipts last year. Zimbabwe hopes that the demand for lithium will help revive its ailing economy.
